Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement 2026

Overview

This statement applies to Academia Ltd (referred to in this statement as “the Organisation”). The information included in the statement refers to the financial year ending 30th June 2025.

Academia Group, including its associated and subsidiary companies, recognises that it has a responsibility under the Modern Slavery Act 2015 to take a robust approach to slavery and human trafficking and we are absolutely committed to preventing slavery and human trafficking in our corporate activities, and to ensuring that our supply chains are free from slavery and human trafficking.

What is Modern Slavery

Modern slavery is defined as the recruitment, movement, harbouring or receiving of children, women or men through the use of force, coercion, abuse of vulnerability, deception or other means for the purpose of exploitation. It is a crime under the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and includes holding a person in a position of slavery, servitude forced or compulsory labour, or facilitating their travel with the intention of exploiting them soon after.

The Organisation considers that modern slavery encompasses:

- Human trafficking;
- Forced work, through mental or physical threat;
- Being owned or controlled by an employer through mental or physical abuse of the threat of abuse;
- Being dehumanised, treated as a commodity or being bought or sold as property;
- Being physically constrained or to have restriction placed on freedom of movement.

GLAA

The Gangmasters and Labour Abuse Authority works in partnership to protect vulnerable and exploited workers. They are a Non-Departmental Public Body whose role is to protect vulnerable and exploited workers, by regulating labour providers, investigating abuse (like trafficking, forced labour), as well as offences under the National Minimum Wage and Employment Agencies Acts.

A GLAA licence is a mandatory UK government licence for businesses supplying workers to sectors like agriculture, horticulture, shellfish gathering, and food processing / packaging, ensuring workers are treated ethically and paid fairly, preventing exploitation, and requiring providers to meet standards on pay, housing, and safety. It's a criminal offense to operate without one, and both UK-based and overseas businesses need it if working in these sectors.

Academia is aware of the GLAA and licensing requirements, but do not believe our supply chain and scope of service provision would fall under the requirement for licensing.

Our Commitment

The Organisation acknowledges its responsibilities in relation to tackling modern slavery and commits to complying with the provisions in the Modern Slavery Act 2015. The Organisation understands that this requires an ongoing review of both its internal practices in relation to its labour force and, additionally, its supply chains.

The Organisation does not enter into business with any other organisation, in the United Kingdom or abroad, which knowingly supports or is found to involve itself in slavery, servitude and forced or compulsory labour.

No labour provided to the Organisation in the pursuance of the provision of its own services is obtained by means of slavery or human trafficking. The Organisation strictly adheres to the minimum standards required in relation to its responsibilities under relevant employment legislation in the UK.

Training / Raising Awareness

The organisation has raised awareness of modern slavery issues by circulating information to employees. The information explained to relevant employees:

- The principles of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and how it applies to Academia;
- How employers can identify and prevent slavery and human trafficking;
- What employees can do to flag up potential slavery or human trafficking issues to the relevant parties within the organisation; and
- What external help is available, for example through the Modern Slavery Helpline.

Addressing the Risks

Due to the nature of the supply chain, Modern Slavery risks are inherently higher in the hardware and peripheral item category, as the production process relies on factory labour.

Additional steps to manage the risk include sourcing goods from recognisable brands and reputable resellers, with evidenced processes and policies in place along with products/ suppliers that are assessed based on the country of origin.

Countries and regions are assessed for risk based on the Global Slavery Index, taking into consideration the latest updates from The Department for International Trade.

Academia participates in a regular Electronics Watch discussion forum for suppliers and public sector buyers, which promotes and protects the rights of workers and minimises risks.

Where appropriate, Academia engages our key distribution suppliers to request information regarding working conditions within global manufacturing and logistics supply chains.

Steps and Due Diligence Processes

The Organisation carries out due diligence processes in relation to ensuring slavery and/ or human trafficking does not take place in its organisation or supply chains, including conducting a review of the controls of its suppliers.

The Organisation has not, to its knowledge, conducted any business with another organisation which has been found to have involved itself with modern slavery.

In accordance with section 54(4) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015, the Organisation has taken the following steps to ensure that modern slavery is not taking place:

- Mapping the supply chain broadly to assess particular product or geographical risks of modern slavery and human trafficking;
- Evaluating the modern slavery and human trafficking risks of each new supplier;
- Conducting supplier audits or assessments which have a greater degree of focus on slavery and human trafficking where general risks are identified;
- When a supplier is deemed to be higher risk by country of origin and/or lack of suitable policy/processes, an investigation is raised and assessed by senior members of the purchasing team which can result in the vendor being inactivated;
- Invoking sanctions against suppliers that fail to improve their performance in line with an action plan or seriously violate our supplier code of conduct, including the termination of the business relationship.

This statement is made in relation to Section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 in respect of the financial year ended 30th June 2025.

This Modern Slavery Statement has been approved on behalf of Academia Ltd and its associated and subsidiary companies by the Board on 16th December 2025.
